Baer Packing Plant Open for Business This Morning.

Promises to Become One of North Side's Big Concerns.

The Baer Packing Co., another concern which promises to enlarge rapidly and boost for the North side, opened for business in the old Woolen Mills building this morning. The building has not been occupied for the last two years and is located near the Santa Fe Junction in North Topeka. It is three stories in height, built of brick and contains more than 30,000 square feet of floor space.

The owners of the packing plant are R. R. Baer, formerly manager of the Topeka packing plant, and Chas. Baer of Abilene.

R. R. Baer is well known in North Topeka having been connected with the Topeka packing plant as manager of the concern for the past seven years. He is mainly responsible for the building up of this plant and making it one of the North side's most important concerns. The Baer packing plant, which he is now at the head, promises to become one of the biggest concerns of its kind in the city.

The Woolen Mills building will be remodeled within a short time and Mr. Baer expects to employ a large force of men within a short time.

SENIORS ON STAGE.

Washburn Graduates Plan to Build Boulder Wall From Proceeds.

That they might be aided in constructing for the college a boulder wall along the north side of the campus, the seniors of Washburn college will present "Mater," a Henry Miller feature, in the chapel building Thursday evening, May 14. An admission of 25 and 50 cents will be charged. All the proceeds will go toward a fund to build this wall along Euclid avenue from College avenue to Mulvane street.

The seniors promise plenty of entertainment in "Mater." The play, written by Percy MacKaye, was featured in recent years by Henry Miller. The Washburn cast of five includes Miss Fannie Stevens of Topeka, Miss Olive White of Topeka, William I. Brown of Topeka, Ray Garvey of Phillipsburg and Dean Rogers of Oberlin.

Miss Stevens is well known on the amateur stage in Topeka. She has taken part in many plays and is a graduate of the school of dramatic reading at Northwestern university, Chicago. She will take the leading part and will have charge of the presentation of "Mater." Ray Garvey of Phillipsburg is a college orator and debater, winning many honors for Washburn in these lines. Dean Rogers is a famous football player and captain of the Sons of Isabod.

The K. U. Washburn glee club joint concert to have been held at the college has been called off and the seniors play promises to take the place of this event on the college calendar. The college classes, literary organizations and fraternities will give line parties to the last appearance of the seniors.

Charles Walp is manager of the play. The class officers are: Dean Rogers, president; Roy Davis, vice president; Herbert Billin, treasurer, and Helen Shirk, secretary.
